THE PERFECT PREPARATION IN 10 STEPS

1

Store French Fries at -18°C (-0.4°F).

2

Do not allow French Fries to defrost; do not refreeze defrosted French Fries.

3

Adjust amount of French Fries to the size of the deep fryer. The following applies: 100 g of product per kilowatt of deep fryer performance and per litre of fat.

4

Cook French Fries in high-quality fat; the fried products absorb the taste of the fat.

5

Do not deep fry the French Fries at temperatures that are too high. The optimal temperature of the oil is between $170-175^{\circ}\text{C}$ ($338^{\circ}-347^{\circ}\text{F}$).

6

Only lightly shake the French Fries in the deep fryer. This way, you'll avoid breakage.

7

Do not deep fry French Fries together with meat and/or fish, since the flavour is transferred to the product.

8

Quickly serve prepared French Fries. After deep-frying, the crispiness of the French Fries continuously lessens.

9

Only keep small amounts of French Fries warm at the same time.

10

Leave the French Fries uncovered so that the steam can escape.

The following applies to all products: in order to achieve an optimal result, always follow the preparation instructions on the packaging.
